1 RAWSEP View The momentous news that on April 28 2025 that Liberal Party Prime Minister incumbent Mark Carney won in Canada and that on May 3 2025 Labor Party Prime Minister incumbent Anthony Albanese won in Australia was that together these two successful re elections of liberal democratic leadership in Canada and Australia were a massive voter rejection of Trump style leadership Trump leadership 2 point zero has shown Americans that Trump is intent on removing funding for the safety net of United States government programs that benefit the vast majority of poor and middle income voters in order for Trump to fund tax breaks for the United States rich These safety net programs extend from Social Security through funding for scientific and medical research that finds cures for diseases and vaccines for pandemics through safety from air pollution that shortens or ends United States lives prematurely

May 8 2025 is the 80th anniversary of VE Day May 8 1945 is the day World War Two ended in Europe On VE Day in 1945 the United States was a great ally of all freed European Nations In 2025 by the actions of Trump Europeans see the United States allied with Russia starting with the War in Ukraine and extending to hostility to Europe and most of the rest of the world in tariff wars

However on May 8 2025 Trump and Keir Starmer of the United Kingdom will announce some details of tariff negotiations in separate speeches in the United States According to United Kingdom sources the yield of these negotiations will be piecemeal changes to the original Trump Tariffs

Other negative economic repercussions from Trump Actions in the news today The new Trump Tariffs on Motion Pictures from foreign countries will apparently continue and furthermore the actor who suggested them to Trump Jon Voigt defends the tariffs in print Trump Tariffs may affect wedding costs Trump Tariffs are set to hit small American farmers the hardest The attack on scientifically and medically beneficial mRNA vaccines which have minimal side effects led by Kennedy Junior in service to Trump and the negative repercussions of this Trump attack on science and effective medicine are explored in several articles today

On a day very important to the United Kingdom and Europe France is allying with Poland in mutual defense because the United States under Trump is seen as abandoning the defense of Ukraine The treaty of Nancy is a consequence of the aggression of Putin and the Trump global wrecking ball In Germany the Christian Democrat CDU Chancellor Friedrich Merz who is head of a centrist coalition with the SPD and was only newly elected on May 6 2025 has his greatest challenge on the right from the Neo Nazi Alternative for Germany AfD party The CDU SPD coalition may seek to contain AfD further by supporting a ban by German courts even as AfD is now partially contained behind a firewall Germany under Merz intends to build up its military strength in order to better defend Ukraine against Russian aggression

3B For Embattled Starmer U S U K Trade Deal Will Count as a Win Prime Minister Keir Starmer has spent months nurturing his relationship with President Trump Is that about to pay off? Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization The New York Times May 8 2025 For Prime Minister Keir Starmer of Britain the news of a trade agreement with the United States is a much needed political victory as well as vindication of his strategy of assiduously cultivating Trump The details of the agreement were not yet clear and could prove contentious with farmers and other interest groups in Britain The Trump announcement on social media seemed to catch even senior British officials off guard after weeks of negotiations characterized by two steps forward one step back progress But that Britain is the first country in the world to conclude a deal with the United States after Trump imposed an across the board tariff of 10 percent on dozens of American trading partners seemed to affirm the special relationship often invoked by British and American diplomats Starmer was expected to address the deal later on Thursday Much of his day will be given over to commemorating the 80th anniversary of the Allied victory over Nazi Germany in World War II That history provides a fitting backdrop for a trade agreement that Britain will no doubt present as a symbol of its enduring ties to the United States

4D The Republican anti tax coalition is beginning to disintegrate For half a century the GOP has embraced tax cuts for the rich But as Americans turn against the idea the party is divided Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization The Guardian April 24 2025 Tax cuts for the rich have been the glue holding the US conservative movement together Now the epoxy seems to be less sticky In recent weeks polls have shown Republican voters becoming far more skeptical of across the board tax reduction proposals Reflecting that shift GOP lawmakers are now trial ballooning a proposal to increase some taxes on the wealthy Some maga voices are attempting to articulate a Republican leaning tax cut version of the Democrat traditional redistributionist rhetoric arguing that higher taxes on millionaires should finance bigger tax cuts for the working class Republican leaders are responding with the previously unthinkable proposals to raise some taxes on the rich All of this has the swamp of Washington old guard Republicans in a panic One longtime anti tax leader insisted that there are traitors inside the Trump White House and another declared This is a potential crisis in the party It sounds like Bernie Sanders economics In the mid 1970s the Republican party was adrift demoralized and divided amid both the post Watergate backlash and the attempt by Gerald Ford to raise taxes in pursuit of halting inflation and plugging federal budget holes Republicans had continued to play Scrooge carping against increased spending without ever offering the obvious alternative of tax reduction One conservative writer concluded Republicans traditionally the party of income growth should be the Santa Claus of tax reduction offering it as a supposed gift to Americans and understand that the first rule of successful politics is Never Shoot Santa Claus It was a revelation for a new generation of conservatives seeking to create a sunnier more optimistic image for the GOP in the wake of the cranky campaign of Barry Goldwater and the downfall of Richard Nixon Younger more telegenic Republican leaders such as Representative Jack Kemp passed the essay around to colleagues urging them to reimagine tax cuts not solely as a means to demonize government but also as a way to court the working class with promises of life bettering benefits The dual message of so called supply side economics soon found its Santa Claus in the anti tax governor turned anti tax president Ronald Reagan Ramming more tax cuts for the rich through Congress is the surest way for Trump to enrich himself his family and the entire front row of his inauguration The powerful anti tax movement of those eras convinced Reagan and Bush to plow forward Reagan followed up his first tax cut by further reducing the top tax rate and the Bush sequel to his first tax cut was slashing taxes on corporate dividends Trump could end up doing much the same But this time around the long term politics of taxes are in flux Running the same tax play would show a Republican president siding with oligarchs against the preferences of his own party rank and file that no longer buys the Santa Claus theory That is a new and unpredictable dynamic one that may finally begin weakening the anti tax grip on power in the years ahead

4E Why is Trump considering raising taxes on millionaires? Now the anti tax sacred cow might get killed

Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization The Guardian May 8 2025 I actually love the concept Trump recently told Time magazine of a proposal circulating within his cabinet to raise taxes upon those earning over $1million If the Republican fiscal bargain is breaking apart the GOP will need another way to unify its increasingly disparate base Rather than take on the deeper structural questions of economic inequality Democrats focused their campaigns on defending existing programs like social security and Medicare Perhaps the crack up of the tax cutting coalition will lead the Republican party to attempt that compromise Just as the Democrats sidestepped thorny economic issues by rallying around the defense of widely accepted civil rights the GOP could turn away from its longstanding economic bargain the one that has defined its politics since Reagan and instead double down on its campaign to undermine those same rights What is certain however is that the tax cutting coalition as we know it has become deeply unsustainable Tax cutting once unified the Republicans But in forcing Trump to choose between taxing the top or deeper austerity for the bottom it now threatens to blow it apart 4F Starmer and Trump to announce UK US trade deal Leaders to hold separate press conferences revealing first trade agreement by White House since global tariffs move Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization

The Guardian May 8 2025 The UK and US are poised to announce a trade agreement the first by the White House since Trump announced his sweeping global tariffs Trump said it was a very big and exciting day for both countries before a press conference in the Oval Office on Thursday Keir Starmer is planning to deliver his own press conference at around the same time The leaders are expected to unveil a trade deal focused on lowering US tariffs on specific products such as British steel aluminium and cars The deal is not expected to be comprehensive UK officials said it would set out agreement on specific sectors where Trump has imposed tariffs and was a starting point from which the two sides would keep negotiating 4G UK officials land in Washington as talks over trade agreement continue Senior negotiators hope to get agreement with US signed ahead of UK EU summit to be held May 19 2025 Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization

The Guardian May 7 2025 A team of senior British trade negotiators has landed in Washington as talks over a deal between the two countries hastens Downing Street did not deny reports the deal could be signed as early as this week although government sources said the recent announcement by Trump of film industry tariffs had proved a significant setback One person briefed on the talks said We have a senior team on the ground now and it may be that they are able to agree something this week The Trump threat of 100% tariffs on films produced in foreign lands which could have a major impact on the British film industry had gone down very badly in Downing Street UK officials say they are targeting tariff relief on a narrow range of sectors in order to get a deal agreed before they begin formal negotiations with the EU over a separate European agreement A draft deal handed to the US a week ago would have reduced tariffs on British exports of steel aluminium and cars in return for a lower rate of the digital services tax which is paid by a handful of large US technology companies Trump made negotiating a trade deal with the UK a lower order priority behind a series of Asian countries UK officials said they have been able to continue talks with their US counterparts despite that describing the Trump approach as chaotic Officials from the trade department arrived in Washington this week hoping to reach an agreement on two outstanding issues pharmaceuticals and films. Trump has said he will impose tariffs on both industries mainstays of the British economy but has not yet given details. 4H How is VE Day commemorated across Europe? Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization. The Guardian May 8 2025. For western Europe including the UK VE Day largely heralded the return of liberty and the triumph of democracy and marked the end of Nazi aggression and occupation the slaughter of a generation of young men and the horrors of the Holocaust. Belgium combines its ceremonies with Armistice Day on 11 November which marks the end of the first world war. The Netherlands and Denmark celebrate Liberation Day on May 5th. Italy one of the German wartime allies also marks Liberation Day victory over the Mussolini puppet government but on April 25th. Russia itself commemorates VE Day with a huge military parade on May 9th because when the ceasefire that ended the war came into force at 11:01pm in Berlin on May 8 1945 it was already the following day in Moscow. The Kremlin has said the Slovakian Moscow friendly prime minister Robert Fico and Aleksandar Vučić the Serbian ultranationalist president will attend the Russian military parade despite strong EU criticism. A counter parade attended by EU foreign ministers will be held in Lviv Ukraine. A group of young people attending the VE Day service at Westminster Abbey said they were there to challenge stereotypes about their generation. In the UK a nineteen year old a 21 year old and a 24 year old from Youth Collaborators are working on a report to influence government strategy on young people. We think it is really important for young people to be invited to this today. We are very interested in VE Day. We think it is really important and it is a privilege to be here. 4i France and Poland reconcile. It is a sign of the alarm in Europe over US disengagement. A new pact could be the first step towards extending the French nuclear shield over central Europe. Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization. The Guardian May 8 2025. In the city where a dethroned Polish king once governed a French province and built enduring landmarks the leaders of France and Poland will sign a treaty on Friday that could be the first formal step towards extending French nuclear deterrence over central Europe in this new era of US unreliability. The treaty of Nancy will be signed on Europe Day in the town hall on the 18th century Place Stanislas by the French president Emmanuel Macron and the Polish prime minister Tusk. It will cement a reconciliation between two countries that have been estranged within the EU for most of the last 30 years. The French lack of enthusiasm for EU enlargement and its pursuit of cooperation with Russia were the main reasons for the strained relationship. Warsaw has long relied exclusively on the US and Nato for its security and has resisted any EU role in defense. But with Trump pursuing rapprochement with Russia the arch foe of Poland and his willingness to let Moscow prevail in Ukraine and reduce US military exposure to Europe Tusk is rushing to build closer ties with Paris Berlin and London in a quest for extra security insurance. The Franco Polish friendship treaty closely resembling the Franco German treaty signed in 1919 will be inked on the very day that Vladimir Putin stages a giant military parade in the Red Square in Moscow with the Chinese president Xi Jinping at his side to mark the 80th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany. The conservative nationalist Law and Justice PiS party the last Polish government led by Jarostaw Kaczyński did its best to obstruct French efforts for closer EU integration. But Poland has now repositioned itself at the heart of the EU under the center right coalition of Tusk and France has lost its illusions about Russia since the full scale invasion of Ukraine by Putin. The treaty of Nancy is a consequence of the aggression of Putin and the Trump global wrecking ball.
