1 RAWSEP View The art of the deal appears to be extortion like a mob boss Trump policies like tariffs are intended to start a extortionate dialog where the victim ends up paying to an individual for what were previous rights Is the elimination of clean energy sources meant to be a bargaining chip where whoever pays the most to Trump gets clean air or is this a sweeping away of modern scientific and engineering marvels only because they were initiated under the Biden administration?

and Senate are both moving to eliminate major tax credits for wind and solar from the 2022 Inflation that start construction next year or in 2027 The House would end the credit almost as soon as the bill is enacted

The New York Times September 17 2025 Climate activists and business leaders were watching to see if Republicans in the Senate would step up and support the clean energy industry But when the Senate Finance Committee unveiled its draft of a sprawling domestic policy bill on Monday June 16 2025 it all but did away with most of the tax breaks for wind and solar power electric vehicles and other clean energy solutions that were passed during the Biden administration It appears that the 2022 Inflation

Reduction Act the largest federal law designed to address climate change will effectively be neutered. The executive director of the Solar Energy Manufacturers for America Coalition said the draft legislation undermines long term American energy and economic security and presents a tremendous step backward for companies looking to move solar power production back to the United States. This bill would endanger hundreds of thousands of clean energy jobs and take food out of the mouths of millions of children. Senator Ron Wyden of Oregon the leading Democrat on the finance committee said Republican environmentalists also lamented the outcome. If enacted Americans will pay more for energy businesses will cancel key energy projects and our nation will fall behind in the global energy race said the president of Citizens for Responsible Energy Solutions a conservative environmental group. The fight. It was not for a lack of trying by the supporters of the Inflation Recovery Act I R A. For months now a diverse coalition has lobbied Congress in hopes of preserving the clean energy tax credits that had unleashed an American manufacturing boom. The senior vice president of government affairs for the League of Conservation Voters said her organization had been working closely with Senator Chuck Schumer Democrat of New York to rally support for the tax credits and make the case to Senate Republicans that while renewable energy is often vilified by President Trump the jobs it creates are popular in Republican led and Democratic led states alike. We went from having been in the fight of our lives to pass the biggest ever investment in climate and clean energy and environmental justice to defending the biggest investment the world has ever seen in climate action she said. A group of House Republicans had also worked to try and moderate the damage joining forces with business groups Democratic lawmakers and climate activists. These unlikely bedfellows were fighting for what they saw as a generational economic windfall. Since the Inflation Reduction Act was enacted in 2022 companies have announced more than $841 billion in new clean energy investments with a vast majority of that money flowing to Republican districts. In the end though the draft legislation that emerged from the Senate Finance Committee contained very little support for clean energy. Tax incentives for nuclear reactors geothermal plants hydropower dams or battery storage would be preserved through 2033 but other credits including those for electric vehicles wind farms solar installations and batteries would be rapidly phased out. If enacted in anything like its current form it will represent a rapid turnaround. Less than three years after President Biden signed into law the most ambitious federal effort to try and address climate change President Trump and his allies in Congress have all but wiped it away. Amid all the other news lately, it might have been easy to miss Robert F. Kennedy Jr.'s latest big move as health secretary: the firing and replacement of the committee of experts that advises the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on vaccines. In a guest essay for Times Opinion, the immunologist Dr. Michael Mina called it a "Code Red" moment for U.S. vaccine policy.

1D We just hit code red for U S Vaccine policy Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization. The New York Times June 18 2025. The recommendations of the the C D C Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices help determine the vaccines doctors provide to patients and whether insurers will cover them. The Kennedy Junior abrupt removal of all 17 members is a warning of what might be coming. A reconstituted committee will be in a position to more directly rearrange alter or dismantle the national vaccine schedule as it sees fit. Since last week, Kennedy announced eight new committee members including people who have spoken critically about vaccines. There are still more spots to fill and the committee is scheduled to meet soon to discuss immunization for Covid 19 RSV Lyme disease human papillomavirus and more. If the recommendation for a vaccine is withdrawn patients who still opt to receive it could be left footing the bill. The committee shake up is not the only change. The administration has also canceled contracts for the development of new vaccines and revised Covid vaccine guidance. When once reliable guidance is muddied by conspiracy thinking the risks to vaccines and the health of Americans increase. This is a precarious moment for vaccine policy. The damage may not be obvious until it is too late.

6 Medicine and Science E P A Plans to Reconsider a Ban on Cancer Causing Asbestos The Trump move sets back a decades long effort to end the use of the material which is widely banned in other countries RAWSEP View Again is the only reason for Trump actions to erase scientific and medical progress? Or making a mob like threats to human health that could be countered by potential victims succumbing to Trump extortion and making Trump a personal monetary offer in exchange for protecting human health? Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization The New York Times June 17 2025 The Trump administration plans to reconsider a ban on the last type of asbestos still used in the United States according to a court filing on Monday The move which could halt enforcement of the ban for several years during the reconsideration is a major blow to a decades long battle by health advocates to prohibit the carcinogenic mineral in all its forms. Known as white asbestos, chrysotile asbestos is banned in more than 50 countries for its link to lung cancer and mesothelioma, a cancer that forms in the lining of internal organs. White asbestos however has been imported for use in the United States for roofing materials, textiles and cement as well as gaskets, clutches, brake pads and other automotive parts. It is also used in chlorine manufacturing. Last year the Environmental Protection Agency under President Joseph R. Biden adopted a ban on the use, manufacture and import of chrysotile asbestos. It was the first legal constraint on a deadly substance since 2016 when Congress updated and strengthened the 1976 Toxic Substances Control Act by requiring testing and regulation of thousands of chemicals used in everyday products. The measure would have still allowed some manufacturers up to 12 years to phase out its use, a provision that followed lobbying efforts by trade groups like the American Chemistry Council. Now the Trump administration plans to delay the ban and reconsider the rule. That process is expected to take about 30 months, the EPA said in a filing with the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, which has been reviewing an industry challenge to the rule. The delay would move the nation backward once again, putting lives at risk, said the president and co-founder of the Asbestos Disease Awareness Organization, an advocacy nonprofit. Asbestos, a set of six naturally occurring fibrous minerals that have the ability to resist heat, fire and electricity, is linked to an estimated 40,000 deaths annually in the United States. It was first used in construction in the 1930s and became ubiquitous as an insulator in schools, hospitals, homes and offices as well as consumer products. In the 1960s and 1970s, researchers began to associate it with health problems, including mesothelioma, a rare and aggressive cancer that disproportionately affects firefighters exposed to asbestos through damaged buildings. Asbestos production in the United States stopped in 2002, but the material is still imported, much of it from Brazil. The presence of asbestos in older homes added to the health risks for firefighters battling the California wildfires this year. A bill introduced by Senator Jeff Merkley, Democrat of Oregon, in 2023 would ban imports of all asbestos. It has not been introduced in this session. Senator Merkley said he would continue to explore all options, including legislation to phase out all dangerous asbestos fibers and provide stronger protections for our health.

7 Trump Budget Cuts to provide tax breaks for the rich. Senate Republicans Propose Key Tax Tweaks to House Bill. Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. The New York Times, June 17, 2025. Two weeks after the House adopted a sprawling package of tax cuts, Senate Republicans on Monday unveiled their legislative vision, proposing a series of tweaks that would primarily enhance the benefits provided to businesses. The legislative text released by the Senate Finance Committee mirrors in broad strokes the effort the House adopted. Both aim to extend a set of tax cuts on individuals and corporations that will soon expire, which President Trump signed into law during his first term and has pushed to expand in his second. In short, the Senate measure offers bigger tax benefits for corporations as well as older Americans. It would also change the way that party lawmakers aim to deliver on the Trump promises to end taxes on tips and overtime. More generous corporate tax breaks. In a major win for businesses, Senate Republicans proposed to make permanent a set of generous deductions for research and development and other expenses, including machinery purchases. The House proposed to extend these measures, which were set to expire at the end of the year but only on a temporary basis. As Republicans in the House looked for ways to shave costs from their already expensive legislation, the legislation includes substantial changes to Medicaid and cuts to other safety net programs along with reductions of some federal spending all of which could lower the total cost of the bill Nonpartisan budget watchdogs found the full measure passed by the House could add $3 trillion to the debt over the next decade The Senate also proposed to make permanent a 20 percent deduction for pass through income which is business income taxed at the individual rates of an owner though it is less generous than the 23 percent deduction proposed in the House Changes to taxes for families Every year taxpayers can opt for what is called the standard deduction a flat amount they can claim on their taxes so that they do not have to itemize every expense Senate Republicans proposed a permanent one time $1000 increase for individuals and $2000 for married filers taking effect in the 2026 tax year while their House counterparts would offer the extra amounts but only through 2028 Otherwise Republicans in both chambers would preserve the lower tax brackets that they set up under Trump in 2017 as they look to stave off what would otherwise be a tax increase beginning next year

9 Assassination of Melissa Hortman and her husband on June 14 2025 How the right spread 'brutal and cruel' misinformation after Minnesota lawmaker killings The rightwing media ecosystem spins up narratives to serve their agendas after tragic events regardless of accuracy Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization The Guardian June 17 2025 Tina Smith a Minnesota senator confronted Mike Lee a Utah senator on Monday to tell him directly that his social media posts fueled ongoing misinformation about a shooting that killed her friend The Mike Lee posts which advanced conspiracies that a Minnesota assassin was a Marxist and blamed the Minnesota governor for the Melissa Hortman death were among many threads of false or speculative claims swirling online after the killings. Smith told Lee his posts were brutal and cruel according to CNN. He should think about the implications of what he's saying and doing. It just further fuels this hatred and misinformation she said. She wanted him to hear from her directly how painful it was to see his words after the brutality her state endured. Lee did not say much according to Smith and seemed surprised to be confronted. Within hours of the shootings rightwing social media accounts with millions of followers manufactured false conspiracy theories about the suspect and his motives falsely portraying the man whose friends say he is an evangelical Christian Trump supporter as a radical leftwing assassin and attempting to paint him as a political ally of Tim Walz the Democratic governor and former vice presidential candidate. Rightwing X user Viva Frei with more than 700000 followers posted a thread casting doubt on Boelter being a Trump supporter. The account has continued to post about the shootings attempting to tie Walz to Boelter and his wife Jennifer. A different Jennifer Boelter interned in the Walz congressional office though Frei has not accepted that fact. On Monday posts showing a man at a protest with a shirt with a gun that says resist falsely claimed the man was Boelter. Yea Libs sorry. He is one of you. Keep saying he is not. No one believes you. The actual man in the picture debunked it saying he was at a No Kings rally in Texas in the photo making clear it was not Boelter. Local Republican officials have largely not contributed to the rumors in some cases pushing back on the narratives. Harry Niska the Republican floor leader in the Minnesota House said on X that he often has and will continue to criticize Walz's policies and rhetoric. But there is no responsible basis to attribute to him any of the evil acts committed by Vance Boelter he said.

Excerpts edited by RAWSEP for brevity and clarity and relationship to Residents Against Wood Smoke Emission Particulates a 501c3 nonprofit organization. The Guardian June 17 2025. Keir Starmer said he rushed to pick up papers dropped by Donald Trump at the G7 summit in Canada mainly to avoid anyone else stepping forward to do so and being tackled by the Trump security team. Speaking to reporters in Kananaskis a day after Trump fumbled some of the documents about a UK US trade deal letting a sheaf of papers tumble to the ground Starmer said he had little choice but to bend down and help out. The UK prime minister said I mean look there were not many choices with the documents and picking it up because as you probably know there were quite strict rules about who can get close to the president. I mean seriously I think if any of you the media had stepped forward other than me – I was just deeply conscious that in a situation like it would not have been good for anybody else to have stepped forward not that any of you rushed to. There is a very tightly guarded security zone around the president as you would expect.
