Part 1 of 7 Tales told out of School US Edition Trademark Evil Genies R Us Cell 1 A fat angry blond schoolboy in a blue sailor suit clutched his over stuffed bear named Clutch Land. His mother caught him continuously sticking his finger where the bear belly button should be. Cell 2 He said it was to keep the stuffing from coming out but as usual Evil Gen Evil was lying and telling the opposite of what he was doing. Cell 3 His mother beat young Evil Gen Evil lightly with a wooden spoon in the old fashioned way of making a meringue which left no bruises. Cell 4 Eventually all stuffing came out of the bear and the bear was only a thin facsimile of a bear and useless for clutching by any child. It looked especially absurd in the arms of Evil Gen Evil because Evil Gen Evil was so fat.

Part 6 of 7 Tales told out of School UK Edition Trademark Evil Genies R Us Cell 1 A fat angry blond schoolboy in a blue sailor suit graduated from high school and sent a toy sailing ship across the sea to the UK. Cell 2 When the English parents of Angst Gee! received the toy boat on the day of his birth the sail had scrawled on it "Give him Evil Genies R US as a christening present!" Cell 3 Angst Gee had been named after a song his mother liked which began with the words "no loving in our souls". Those lyrics struck a chord with Angst Gee's mother Cell 4 Angst Gee's father also liked the song and sang along to "You cannot say we are satisfied!" while Angst Gee was in his cradle.

Part 7 of 7 Tales told out of School UK Edition Trademark Evil Genies R Us Cell 1 Angst Gee could legitimately state years later that his parents told him on the day he was born that they had no souls and were not satisfied with Him! Cell 2 When Angst Gee was in his late teens and in military school his name was laughed at and he was called a silly goose. That changed him forever. Cell 2 Angst Gee began goose stepping around in protest. Angst Gee bullied other boys and called them names 24 hours a day! Cell 4 Angst Gee was named the UK version of a camp counselor at his military school anyway!
