I don't want to be a wood stove wrecker
I just want the air to be better be better
But this block is not big enough for the rest of us
Your polluting wood stove and the rest of us
The residents are restless on this block
Every polluting breath we take is on the clock
The ticking of the bomb of your wood stove is silent but deadly. This is not some cozy cove
A covert place where no one notes your existence
I don't covet your wood stove but it has an expired license
A license to kill is no license at all
Convert your stove to a decorative waterfall
In your backyard powered by solar
The birds will congregate even when wind are polar
We will get out our binoculars and see with pleasure
That our air is clean and the view spectacular
