RFK Junior has repeatedly questioned the safety and effectiveness of the technology around which another company who makes mRNA Covid vaccines has built its business. The technology, known as messenger RNA, or mRNA, instructs the body to produce a fragment of a virus a methodology that then sets off an immune response. It can be more quickly tailored and manufactured compared to traditional approaches. Last week, the Food and Drug Administration refused to review Moderna’s mRNA flu vaccine, saying its research design was flawed. The decisions Of the health officials are a striking departure from the Trump first term, when the vision Of the federal government funded and shepherded Moderna’s Covid vaccine. The company’s stock price has plummeted more than 90 percent then since its peak in August 2021, erasing about one hundred 80 billion dollars in market value. Without any scientific reason mRNA vaccines have become a target.
